SUMMARY

AB 753 (Robert Garcia) provides a pathway for Early Childhood Education (ECE) Teachers to serve infants and toddlers. Child care providers are currently struggling to hire a sufficient number of qualified teachers to keep all classrooms fully staffed and open. Furthermore, the lack of care available for infants and toddlers is acute across the state. Compounding the problem are lengthy licensing wait times.

Specifically this bill would:

Authorize childcare and preschool programs to hire an interim associate teacher and provide them with 2 years from their hire date to obtain a Child Development Associate Teacher Permit, or equivalent permit. As a condition, the interim associate teacher must have at least six units from an accredited institution of higher education in early childhood education, child development, or human development, or a combination thereof towards their Child Development Associate Teacher Permit or equivalent. There can be no more than one interim associate teacher pursuant to this provision per classroom.

Assembly Bill (AB) 753 was introduced on February 18, 2025 and amended on April 20, 2025 by Assemblymember Robert Garcia.

California's child care staffing crisis for children ages 0 – 5 is acute. Only one in five children under age 5 who are eligible for subsidized care find a placement, due in large part to a dire shortage of childcare workers.

But [TAG Assemblymember Robert Garcia] has a plan to open pathways for early childhood educators. His bill would create a fresh stream of candidates for childcare centers to hire, giving more families access to the quality care they need. AB 753 would allow centers to hire Early Childhood Education (ECE) students to support licensed teachers in classrooms while earning their degrees.

Nearly 900,000 California children ages 0–5 are eligible for subsidized child care. However, only 19% of these children find placements – one of the biggest barriers to expanding care to meet the need is the extreme teacher shortage.

[TAG Assemblymember Robert Garcia] has a bill to create a fresh stream of job candidates to California's childcare centers. His AB 753 would allow aspiring teachers to work under licensed teachers while they complete coursework. More hiring means more California families accessing quality care.

Californians' high demand for childcare swamps its available labor force. Scarcity is particularly acute in rural regions and the Central Valley, and for babies and toddlers everywhere.

One smart solution is to ease licensing barriers by allowing aspiring Early Childhood Education teachers who are earning their degrees to support certified teachers in classrooms. [TAG Asm. Robert Garcia's] sensible AB 753 bill would create a pathway for more ECE students to start their careers in California. It also opens opportunities for more kids ages 0–5 to develop the early literacy, early math and language skills they need for success in kindergarten and in life.

Only 19% of California kids ages 0–5 who are eligible for subsidized child care are able to access it, in large part because centers can't hire enough teachers. Asm. Robert Garcia's bill AB 753 would help by allowing aspiring ECE teachers to work under licensed teachers while they finish their studies. This bill is not only good for families and Early Learning and Care teachers, it will strengthen our state's economy by helping more individuals enter and stay in California's workforce."

California is home to more than 1.7 million children under the age of 3 — our state's next generation. These youngest Californians represent about 4% of our state's population and are from diverse backgrounds, with nearly 60% speaking a language other than English at home. Our #babies and #toddlers urgently need high-quality, affordable early learning and care from birth, but we have a dire shortage of care that's impacting families, caregivers, and our economy. Read the @edsources commentary from AB 753 cosponsors @earlyedgeca and @kidangohq on the importance of acting now to ensure our babies have the supports they need to thrive: edsources.org/2025/its-time-to-prioritize-our-youngest-californians/728471 #birthtothree
